Diploma of Management

The roles of managers vary according to the organisation and the scope of their position. Workers with this qualification are usually engaged to manage the work of others or to add value to or review management practices, in a wide range of organisations across the full diversity of Australian business, for example manufacturing, hospitality and retail.

This program is available only on a fee-for-service basis and may be delivered as a class-room or self-paced distance mode.

Participants who have already completed competency units can claim credit transfer at no cost.

Those who can demonstrate competence based on prior learning can take advantage of accelerated progression.
